

Best Practice COVID 19

Join us online...

With the spread of the coronavirus, we know many of you have had to make the difficult decision to ask your employees to work from home for the foreseeable future.

EF has had to do this too, and we've experienced first-hand the challenges involved. But we have also thought of ways to help you minimize the impact on your business and keep your employees motivated. To that end, we have put together a one-time special offer that will give your employees access to new learning and development opportunities.

! One month free access to EF English Live, our leading online training platform Enable your employees to continue their learning progress virtually and lessen their burden of being confined at home. Our online self-study program includes 2,000 hours of engaging, video-based content, available on all devices, anywhere, at any time. Whether your employees need some general English lessons or want to use this time to explore our business skills and industry-specific courses, we offer content for all levels and needs.
